CHANGES HIS NAME.

Johnny Schiff is arrested as German spy.

The Kaiser is now in pretty bad with Johnny Schiff, the two-headed footballer, who is boxing in London. By reason of his German name, Johnny was accused of being a spy and was detained by the English officials. When Johnny came back at the British foreign office he proved that his real name is not Johnny Schiff at all, but Foster Newman. He was released. Newman, in England at least, he goes under the name of Foster Newman.

The same thereafter.

BOXING GOSSIP.

George Carpenter, the French heavy-weight champion, who was a decision on a foul from Gumbart Smith in London a few months ago, is reported to be in a critical condition at a hospital in France as a result of a bullet wound in the right lung, received in battle. This was a wound received by him, Norman Kelly, wife of Kid McCoy, the former heavy-weight pugilist, in a letter from a friend in Paris.

Ad Wolgast did not remain very long at Del Haven's training quarters in Westchester. He stayed there for a few hours yesterday and then notified his manager, Tom Jones, to arrange quarters in the hotel in battle. He was immediately made arrangements with Jack Cooper to have Ad work out at his gymnasium, beginning yesterday.

A battle between heavy-weights will be brought off in Kansas City tonight. The big fellow who will clash in it are Carl Morris, the Oklahoma Giant, and Jim Flynn, the game and aggressive fighter of Pueblo. They will come together in a ten-round go at the Grand Avenue A. C. in that city. This will be the second time they have fought.

Johnny Dundee, who has fought very well in the belt, has been named in London and California during the last few months, is now on his way back East. He left Los Angeles today. He will probably try to get on a boat with the winner of the Ad Wolgast-Fredrick Welsh contest.

Sam Langford's trip to San Francisco may be a mean one, for word has just been received here that Harry Wills, the boxer colored heavy-weight, has been named in a ten-round battle at Jim Coffey's arena on November 13. He has withdrawn from the bout. Coffey may get Wills to change his mind by offering him more money for his services.

Eddie Morgan, the fast little English bantam-weight, is now matched for two contests. His first will be with Eddie Walker, of Brooklyn, for two rounds, which will be the semi-final to the Welsh-Wolgast bout on Monday night, while his second will be with Patsy Kline, the Newark feather-weight, at the Manhattan Sporting Club on November 5.

Fighting Joe Roland, who has made a good showing in the bouts he has fought in New York since his return from England, is signed up for another scrap. He will go against "Cy" Smith, the Brooklyn light-weight, in the main go at the Queensboro Athletic Club, of Long Island City, on Saturday night. Young Al Kala and Jim Mann box at the same show.

YALE SWAMPED WITH TICKET APPLICATIONS

Requests for 70,000 Seats for Harvard Game—Big Bowl Will Hold Only 61,000 Persons.

New Haven, Nov. 1.—Yale football authorities have been swamped with ticket applications for the Yale-Harvard game, which the mammoth new stadium will hold. The ticket department has been flooded with requests for tickets, and the Yale authorities are now trying to get the tickets out of the hands of the public.

Not only has this been found impossible, but the Yale ticket department finds itself nearly 10,000 seats short of the applications demanded. Quick action was necessary and the situation was relieved when it was announced tonight that a few thousand of the tickets and that an open sale would be held to dispose of about 9,000 other applications.

Even with this addition, about 1,000 applications for tickets must be refused.

Edward Thompson, manager of the athletic ticket department, says tonight that every Yale graduate and undergraduate will be taken care of.

MACK WANTS COLLEGE MEN

Eleven Graduates of Universities on Roster of White Elephants.

DEVELOP INTO STARS

Best Men on Athletics Cost Practically Nothing and Prove to Be a Winning Combination.

There are eleven college graduates on the Athletics' roster at the present time—a greater number by far of this type of athlete than decorate the line-up of any other big league ball club. The college players are: Second Baseman Eddie Collins, Columbia; Shortstop Jack Barry, Holy Cross; Outfielder Eddie Murphy, Villanova, and Jimmy Walsh, Niagara University; Pitchers Edward Plank, Gettysburg; Charles Edward Bender, Carlisle; Lloyd Davies, Amherst Agricultural; J. Weldon Wyckoff, Bucknell; Jack Combs, Colby; Catcher Dean D. Sturgis, Bucknell; Utility J. A. Thompson, University of North Carolina.

It long has been Connie Mack's theory that a good college player will develop into a brainer, better big league player than the sand-lot variety of ball player. And Connie's scouts, instead of touring the country, watching the minor leaguers in action, devote most of their time to watching the college boys in their games.

Connie saw Jack Barry in action while Barry was shortstop for the Holy Cross team, and shortly afterward induced Barry to sign a contract. Barry didn't cost Connie a dollar in purchase money. Neither did Eddie Collins, regarded as the greatest baseball find in ten years.

Collins was the star of the 1908 Columbia College baseball team. Later in the summer he sought out Clark Griffith and wanted a job. Griffith couldn't see him as a player. Collins then asked Connie Mack for a trial. He got it—under the name of Sullivan. Collins didn't make a great showing at the start, but Connie Mack saw in him great promise. It so happened that when Collins was with the Mackmen during the first year one of the Chicago photographers took a picture of him. The picture was printed and in due course of time found its way into Columbia College. Some one there recognized Sullivan as Collins and right there Collins' amateur career ended. He finished his course at Columbia in the fall of 1908 and 1907, joining the Mackmen in the spring of 1907. After switching him around a bit, Connie finally discovered that Collins was a natural second baseman. And that's where Collins has played since.

Connie Mack didn't pay a cent for Eddie Plank or Chief Bender, two of the he wrested the title from Willie Ritchie in London last summer.

Ad Wolgast, "the Michigan wildcat," former title-holder, is the Englishman's opponent, and the bout will be held in Madison Square Garden, New York City. In meeting Wolgast the champion did not pick him as a soft one, but selected him rather because he is a good drawing card and likely to prove a tough nut to crack.

Wolgast has been working hard ever since the match was made to get himself into condition, and if reports are to be credited the Michigan youngster is in better shape than at any time since he fought Battling Nelson on the Pacific Coast, winning the title, which he held lost to Ritchie.

greatest pitchers that ever buried a twister. Connie saw Plank when he was

The ex-champion has made the prediction that he will win from Welsh by a knockout. All ex-champs pull the same stuff, but nevertheless, it shows a certain amount of confidence that counts a whole lot and without it a boxer cannot hope to amount to much.

On past performances, Welsh cannot win tonight's bout, but this year appears to be one of many upsets, and Wolgast may be able to make good his threat.

The average fight fan is inclined to regard Welsh as a light tapping boxer of great cleverness and never even suspect him of packing a wallop of sufficient force to knock a hat off an opponent's head. In many of his bouts Welsh was content to "steal" the decision on points but that he really has a stunner is proven by his record.

When Wolgast was meeting all comers and winning fights with a knockout punch, before his hands went back on him, he established a wonderful record for a boxer, but comparing Wolgast's record with that of Welsh's we discover after figuring down to a percentage basis that the Englishman has knocked out 37 per cent of his foes and Wolgast 28 per cent.

In the last four years Welsh has scored a greater number of knockouts than has Ritchie, his opponent, from whom he won the title.

No matter from what point you view tonight's big scrap, the battle will be a crack-a-jack if the reports of Wolgast's physical condition are correct.

The biggest surprise in college football Saturday outside of Georgetown's overwhelming victory here was the loss of the Harvard-Michigan game in Cambridge when the Mats and Blues held the Crimson to a single touchdown, gaining more ground and displaying a good knowledge of the finer points of the game.

Harvard's excuse was that the team did not play its best men and was kept under cover a lot of "stuff" especially prepared for Yale and Princeton. This is taken with a grain of salt in many quarters. Harvard probably played the best football of which it was capable, and the team will have to hustle if it is to again maintain the championship of the East for both years.

Princeton are well fortified this year, both stronger in all departments than last season.

Georgetown, like all big heavy eleven, is just starting to "come." The team Saturday showed what the coaches had expected in the fall, and unless injuries crop out the Hilltoppers will make things mighty interesting for its opponents during the remaining games on the schedule.

Next Saturday Jack Hogshead's Carolina Aggies show on the Hilltop field, and this contest is going to be much closer than most folks here realize.

The Tarheels last Saturday came within an ace of beating the Navy, and will present a veteran, well-drilled heavy team, but Georgetown is ready for them, and the fur is bound to fly.

The most notable achievement of any local football team in recent years was the work of Coach Curly Byrd's Maryland Agricultural eleven on Tuesday, when St. John's was decisively beaten in Annapolis.

The Maryland Aggies had on the Saturday previous gone over to Baltimore and licked the Johns Hopkins team. You've got to hand it to a football eleven able to win two hard games with but two days in which to rest up its players. This is what the Maryland boys accomplished.

HIGGINBOTHAM AND LEGORE, TWO OF YALE'S FOOTBALL STARS THIS YEAR

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1.—Harry Legore, full back on the Yale team, has been doing some of the best punting this year that has been seen on the gridiron. In the game lost to Washington and Jefferson Legore repeated by himself over the heads of his opponents and on one of his punts covered nearly 75 yards. He scored Yale's solitary touchdown. Higginbotham, an end, has also been playing a good game.
